

Track 11.3

Adam:I'm getting so tired of programming. I think I need a change. I'm going to find a new career. Maybe I should become a professional gamer. I mean, who wouldn't love to play games all day and make money, right?

Robert:Haha, seriously? You want to play games all day? You do realize you have to be good at it, right? You can't just decide to sit and play any random game!

Adam:Well, yeah, but I plan to practice, you know? I'll start with a few games, get really good, and then I'll just stream my gameplay. Who needs coding when you can play and make money? Plus, I can hope to get sponsored by big brands.

Robert:You hope to get sponsored? Dude, it's not that easy! You can't just sit around and expect people to pay you for playing. You need to decide to work hard for it.

Adam:I know, I know! I'll have to find the balance, like... maybe only play for 4 hours a day, and the rest of the time I'll work or do something productive. I hope to finish my projects faster, but the gaming will always be there.

Robert:Haha, right. So, you're going to plan to work and game? Sounds like a challenge. You'll decide to become a gaming superstar, but you'll still be coding away on the side? Good luck with that!

Adam:Exactly! It's all about balance. I plan to be a gaming legend and still be a coding genius. Who says you can't have both?

Robert:Well, if you can decide to make it work, I guess we'll see. Just don't forget about your real job while you're busy collecting points!

Adam:Haha, don't worry! I'll hope to do both. Time to start streaming... after I finish this last bug.
